

Imagination Stage Virtual Field Trips

2020-2021 Season: Timeless Tales

Join Imagination Stage this winter for a new kind of theatre experience designed expressly for the current moment. A virtual Field Trip with Imagination Stage allows students to experience the joy of live theatre safely from their socially distant classrooms or homes.

HOW A VIRTUAL FIELD TRIP WORKS

1. The class attends a virtual, actor-lead workshop that connects students to the themes of the show and asks students to participate in activities that directly involve them.
2. Classes “attend” a fully-produced theatre performance of The Snow Queen - streamed right into their classrooms or home.
3. Teachers are provided with a wrap-around guide and worksheets to help guide further activities and instruction, and the opportunity to participate in a professional development session.

ABOUT THE SNOW QUEEN

Written by Mike Kenny

Adapted from the Story by Hans Christian Andersen

Directed by Janet Stanford

In this adaptation of Hans Christian Andersen's famous winter fairy tale, a powerful friendship is put to the test as four narrators bring to life the story of Gerda and Kai, life-long best friends whose relationship is broken by the unfeeling Snow Queen. Can Gerda save Kai before his heart is frozen solid? Imagination abounds in this magical story of courage, wit, and unshakable resilience!

ABOUT THE WORKSHOP

The interactive and dynamic in-class workshops (lasting between 45 minutes and 1 hour) with one of the show's actors were designed in consultation with renowned child psychologist and author Dr. William R. Stixrud, PhD to meet students' social and emotional needs as they cope with the continued effects of the pandemic. The activities in the workshop are specifically selected to help young people choose optimism, understand their emotions and build resilience with the help of friends, family and their community.

Workshop activities include:

- creating a blizzard with paper streamers
- making statues and tableaux
- identifying emotions
- building a puppet version of the Snow Queen

WHEN

November 18, 2020 - February 26, 2021

Best availability November 18, 2020 - January 1, 2021

The Snow Queen will be presented through our Learning through Theater program, which serves select grades and classes at Title I schools in Washington, D.C. and Maryland. Priority will be given to these classrooms after January 1st, 2020, but we are currently booking other schools in November and December and have a waitlist for other interested parties after the new year.
